Penny University - Urban Legend?

English Coffee houses in the 17th & 18th centuries were influential places—patronized by artists, intellectuals and merchants. Dubbed "penny universities," it was said a man could "pick up more useful knowledge than by applying himself to his books for a whole month." A penny was the price of a coffee. . .

Bill Pickle...

A Legend Reborn

Bill Pickle is a local legend whose reputation has grown well beyond his mortal influence in State College. During his lifetime he became known across America and Europe as a shining example of a reformed person "gone good." His death in 1939 had mourners flocking from across the United States to State College and to memorial services in New York and London.

The Facts of Life...

Born William Gilliland, February 19, 1850 in Oak Hall (a few miles away).

Moved to State College as a young man to be a carpenter.

Built his own house at 411 E. Beaver Avenue where he lived with his wife and 12 children. Thereafter, the area became known as Pickle Hill.

Held many jobs including field plow, hostler, and carriage man for State College's Dr. W.S. Glenn, and janitor for Penn State.

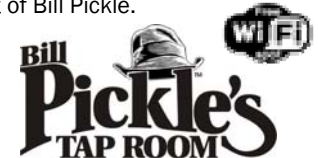

In 1911 he met Frank Buchman, founder of the Moral Re-Armament.

At a YMCA convention in Toronto Bill declared "I have decided to change my life" and decided to attend church, give up tobacco and stop drinking.

During the late 20's and early 30's Bill traveled with Buchman as a witness at houseparties including a trip to England.
